Wirral Author Riffs On Hamlet In This Modern Supernatural Mystery

In 'Death On All Hallows' Eve', a grieving young woman is told there is more to her father's death than she first thought, and if she is to believe the strange Brummie Goth snooping around her house, her dead father is the one doing the telling.

Released in paperback and ebook from

The author's thoughts:

The very first line of the book

'Bridget and Eileen sit like two old friends, except that one is dreaming while the other is dead.'

captures the image I woke up with one morning. 'What if?' I thought, and so the book slowly began to reveal itself.

Rita Mistry has been living on the Wirral for a little over a decade, having been drawn to the 'dark side' from Liverpool by her now wife, Anne. Having always wanted to 'be a writer' and doing nothing about it until beginning perimenopause, she completed her Masters in Creative Writing with The Open University in 2023. With inspiration from the Bard of Avon, she has finally completed – and is excited to share – her debut work.

Endorsement:

A wonderfully original debut combining mystery, humour and heartfelt emotion. Rita Mistry creates characters whose stories linger long after you've turned the final page.
